Mrs. Hussey, who had listened with her head inclined—who shall say in attention or in sorrow ?-to young Edw. Hahn yesterday as he related his story of the shooting, was not in court this morning when Mr. Howe began his questioning of the slaver of her husband, but came in afterward with the wife of her son, Cornelius Hussey.

Hahn's air in relating his story was that of one oppressed by the awful situation he was in, and his voice was very low, though every word was quite distinct. His language was good, as was indicated in The Evening World report, and he made a favorable impression on the minds of his hearers.

To-day Mr. Howe began with:

Hahn, did you deliberate and intend to kill Jack Hussey? A. No, sir. Q. You said you fired two shots in the air? A. That's what I said. Q. Have you heard that Hussey had often as-saulted other policemen and citizens? A. Yes,

Q. Have you heard that Hussey was a leader of the draft riots?

This was ruled out by the Court, who also declared the last two questions properly inadmissible, and Mr. Howe excepted.

Hahn said he had been fined one and three days' pay for sitting down at 20'clock in the morning, and for going into a saloon, respectively.

morning, and for going into a saloon, respectively.

Mr. Howe wanted to show that Hahn obtained from the blotter in the Delancey street station a knowledge of the record of Hussey as an assaulter of policemen. But this was not allowed, and Mr. Howe turned the witness over to the prosecution.

Col. Fellows cross-examined Hahn, and Hahn did not appear so well. He essayed to argue with Col. Fellows, and was captious in his replies.

Col. Fellows—You didn't intend to kill Hussey.

Q. Where did you intend to hit him? A. In the leg. I almed low. I knew that the course of the bullet would be downward.

Q. Were there any plies of brick or stones in the near vicinity of the place of the shooting? A. There had been building going on there. I did not say I was hit by stones or brick. I said missiles.

Q. Hussey did not approach you when you first saw him that evening, did he? A. No, sir.

Q. He said he did not know you, didn't he? A. He did.

Q. Why did you fire that first shot? A. Russey was following me out and I wanted to attract the attention of a policeron. A. About eight feet when I fired the shots?
A. About eight feet when I fired the first; ten or twelve feet at the second shot, and fifteen feet when I fired the third shot.

O. How many Q. How many stones were thrown when you were running toward Corlears street? A. I didn't

Were there a dozen? A. I should think as C. Were you on duty when you were drinking and buying drink in those saloons?

After bridling and arguing a little, Hahn replied in the affirmative, under instructions replied in the amirmative, under instructions from Mr. Howe.

Q. Why did you not tell why you shot Hussey, when you were given the first opportunity at the hospital? A. I had no right to tell Hussey.

Q. This fercelous man put up his hand and asked: "Why did you shoot me?" Was it saked angrily or quietly, reproachfully? A. I did not notice signs of anger. I can't say if he was represented.

Q. Did helloffer his hand? A. Fes, str; but I did not take it the first time. I took it afterwards because Sergt. Lancer ordered me to.

Q. How much had you drank at the excursion that day? A. About a dozen beers.

that day? A. About a dozen beers.

Judge Cowing asked Hahn several questions, and the prisoner illustrated the shooting, using the corner of Judge Cowing's desk in a graphic illustration of the corner entrance to McElroy's saloon. He said that he had his eyes on Hussey all the time and that Hussey never stood near the wagon in the street. Hussey did not stop at all, but followed him on a run, swinging his arms. He showed no weapon, but Hahn said he feared he might have one in his pocket. Hussey was fifteen feet away.

feet away. At this Judge Cowing asked :

Q. How old are you? A. Twenty-six years. Q. How old was Hussey? A. Fifty-nine years, Q. And you did not think your legs would be nimble enough to take you out of his reach? No, air.

Q. Would you be afraid of Hussey single-handed and alone if neither of you were armed, old as he was? A. Yes, air, I would.
Q. But your fear of Hussey and the crowd immediately vanished after you had dred that third heat? Yes, air.

Q. But your fear of Hussey and the crowd immediately vanished after you had fired that third shot? A. Yes, sir.

Hahn admitted to Judge Cowing that a man came near him between the first and second shots and he told him to get out of the way because he was going to shoot.

"Then you were deliberating." said Col. Fellows; "had deliberated enough to warn this man to get out of the way, you were going to shoot?" and Hahn answered in the affirmative, and this finished the examination of Edward Hahn.

The testimony of several other witnesses concluded the evidence on both sides, and as it lacked only ten minutes of the usual time for recess the pause was taken.

After recess Mr. Howe summed up for the defense, followed by Col. Fellows.

BALANCE OF TRADE AGAINST THEM. The Deminion Government Must Stare the Sum of $23,376,000 In the Face.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] OTTAWA, Out., Oct. 13.-The Dominion Government, despite their protestations that it never would happen again, find themselves confronted with a balance of trade of $23,376,000 against them as shown by the trade statistics of imports and exports just published by the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30.

The total amount of customs duties collected upon goods imported into the Dominion during the year was $22,469,706, an increase of $3,021,582 over the figures for the preceding year, the total imports being $112,892,236.

the preceding year, the total imports being $112,892,236.

The average rate of duty levied upon imports, dutiable and free, was 20 per cent., compared with 18 per cent. in 1886 and 13% per cent. in 1878. The exports have increased from $85,250,000 to $89,500,000. The increase in imports, largely made upon goods entered from the United States, was 8 per cent., while exports only increased 5 per cent.

BULLS BOOST THE MARKET

STAID OLD STOCKS HANDLED WITHOUT GLOVES BY BUSY BROKERS.

Reports of Cut Rates by Western Road Send the Bulls Under Cover Temperarily and Bears Make an Onslaught-Foreign Speculators Disposed to Sell America critics—Tips From The World's Ticker

WALL STREET, Oct. 13. URE enough, the slump in stocks yesterday brought in a large number of out-oftown selling orders this morning, and the bears naturally took advantage of this to continue the hammering process. A few of the bulls who had not lost hope altogether gave support to Union Pacific and several other shares and the stock just named jumped to 46% from 44% at the close yes terday, but they were terday, but they were met by such a flood of selling that they, too, quickly gave up the task. The passing of the Baltimore and Ohio dividend was used as a great bear argument, but there was hardly any necessity for even this, in view of the alarming reports received concerning the railroad situation at the West. The big lines were said to be cutting and slashing rates on all kinds of traffic, and Manager Micker, of the Northwest, was credited with saying that "Tariffs are so low I'm ashamed to look at them."

"Tariffs are so low I'm ashamed to look at them."

When the bulls saw this they ran under cover and the market was completely at the mercy of their opponents. Union Pacific tumbled from 46½ to 44½; St. Paul from 72% to 70%, and some of the less active shares, like San Francisco, Oregon Navigation, Mil. Lake Shore & Western, and St. Paul & Duluth broke 2 to 4 points on very small sales. Even the staid old Chic. Bur. & Quincy was handled without gloves, and while sales were being made at 128 a 129 regular it was offered at 125 seller sixty.

A good deal of long stock was forced out which the bears quickly grabbed, and then proceeded to bring about a rally. The smaller shorts, as soon as they took in the situation, made an effort to cover and the result was an advance to figures above last night's classics.

sult was an advance to figures above last night's closing.

London after selling stocks also took back some of them when things were improved. Western Union and Reading were firmer all day than the rest of the market, and the story that the Reading troubles would surely be fixed up this afternoon assisted the recovery in the whole list.

A rumor was affoat that the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy dividend will be reduced to the rate of 5 per cent. per annum. This added to the uneasy feeling during the morning.

Just before 2 o'slock the bears made a terrific onslaught upon 8t. Paut and forced it down to 70%. As 70 has been the price promised by the Bateman party, the impression gainedg round that a rally was not far off.

Money was offered at 4 a 5 per cent. on stocks and there was unnsual pressure to lend on Governments at 8% per cent. on Governments at 3½ per cent. Exchange was strong and the rates were put up to 4.82 and 4.86%.

It is confidently believed that leaven is at work in Reading affairs which will shortly shake the market up on a sharp raily.

The Gould people talk hopefully and say that the ultimate outcome of R. & O. and Reading manipulation will be a considerably higher market.

Russell Sage is no longer adverse to selling "puts" on Western Union, but his "spreads," good for the balance of the year, are from fifteen to twenty points apart.

Jackson and Tucker. The young' man's mother is nearly crazed with grief over the unexpected death of her boy John. Young McCabe is in a similar condition and moans and cries fearfully as he lies behind the bars of a cell in the Bridesburg jail. There is no doubt in the mind of Coroner's Messenger Wolf that the shooting was accidental, and at the inquest such a verdict will be found, and it will set McCabe free. The two were fond of gunning. The were out yesterday for rail birds. It was shortly after 12 o'clock when the accident occurred. They were near the river bank at Wheatsheaf Lane. McCabe saw a flock of birds and took aim. His friend was standing to one side in eager expectation of the aim being successful. As McCabe was about to fire an old piece of wood which his foot was resting on gave away, precipitating him to the ground. In falling he fell towards his friend, and, having his hand on the trigger of the gun, it was sprung. McCabe picked himself up in an instant to find young Gillespie covered with blood and breathing his last. The whole of the charge had struck Gillespie in the neck and breast. Immediate help was far away. Gillespie only lived a few minutes. He died before McCabe's eyes without speaking a word.

common jail. The criminal to whom the flogging was administered by the sentence of the court was Dumase Desormin, an alleged Roman Catholic missionary who, having been caught in the act of a brutal assault on a girl nine years old, was arrested, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to twenty-three months imprisonment and twenty lashes. The so-called flogging was witnessed by six local physicians and four reporters.

At 7 o'clock the condemned was tied to a triangle with enough rope to rig a yacht, and the Warden stood over with the regulation "cat" in his hand: The jailer counted ten and at each number the whip came down on the criminal's back so lightly that the blow had no perceptible effect. Desormin did not screech or howl, but said twice, "Not so hard, please," and the Warden tried to oblige him and laid the strokes on easier. When ten lashes had been given, the criminal was untied and walked away as if nothing had happened. His back was only slightly marked. It was the unanimous opinion of doctors present that such alleged flogging would have no terrors for brutes of his class, and were loud in their denunciation of the affair as a ridiculous faree.

Both Stain and Cromwell Slept Well Last Night-What the Tombs Turnkey Thinks of the Two Men-Cromwell's Bad Reputation in the Vicinity of Foxbere', Mass,-Both Men Are Very Desperate Characters

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

Bosrow, Oct. 13 .- The alleged murderers, Stain and Cromwell, paid the Tombs a visit last night. Stain was placed at once in cell No. 27, near the end of the long corridor, and Cromwell slept in No. 16.

Both of them passed a quiet night. They went to bed soon after their arrival at the cells, went to sleep early and were wide awake this morning when summoned to the train.

At 8.30 o'clock their cells were unlocked. Stain was handcuffed by Officers Bean and Cromwell to a fellow-officer, and they started for the Dexter (Me.) train. Speaking of their appearance the turn-key at the Tombs, who held their liberty in his hands, said: "The man who staid over there," pointing to cell 27, " was the one who did the business I can bet. The other man seems docile and looks though he could be easily led along. He does not seem to have courage enough to go ahead and do anything rash alone. Stain, however, looked desperate. I think he would take any means to accomplish any design that he might have."

The most surprised set of detectives in the country this morning are the sleuth hounds connected with the Chief Inspector's office in Pemberton Square.

The remarkable story of THE WORLD'S capture of the murderes of Cashier Barron, of the Dexter Bank, astonished them.

"The best piece of enterprise I ever heard of." exclaimed Chief Inspector Hanscom today to THE EVENING WORLD correspondent. 'To think that a paper should run down the perpetrators of one of the most mysterious of modern crimes in such a complete manner astounds me. The World has election district in the State is to be reported to the Executive Committee, and a poll made of the probable vote in each election disous of modern crimes in such a complete

In all the hotels, police stations and on the streets the sole topic of conversation is The World's "beat." Hundreds of people who read an abstract of the story in the Globe were waiting in the corridors of Young's Hotel and waiting in the corridors of Young's Hotel and Parker's for the arrival of THE WORLD on the 1 o'clock train from New York to get the

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Oct. 13 .- A big crowd of curious people was gathered in the depot here upon the arrival of the 9 o'clock Portland train from Boston, all anxious to get sight of David L. Stain and Oliver Cromwell, the men who are engaged to have murdered Cashier John Barron, of the Dexter (Me.) Savings Bank, and robbed that institution in 1878, by Charles F. Stain, a son of David Stain. There men were in the custody of Sheriff Mitchell and sat quietly in a car about the third from the end of the train. A crowd quickly gathered about the men, and but few had a chance to see them. Both hung their heads, kept their eyes on the floor and said nothing. They seemed to feel their position keenly. Similar scenes occurred all along the road where stops were made.

Cromwell a Desperate Character. (SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

FOXBORO, Mass., Oct. 13.—Oliver Cromwell, who was arrested yesterday at Walpole charged with being one of the murderers of Cashier Barron, of the Dexter, Me., Bank, was well known in this vicinity and was suspected of being the murderer of Mrs. Arrington, of Poxboro, and was for Abram Dorfmann, of 87 Essex street, and Elias Kauffmann, of 12 Norfolk street, astmakers, got some time closely watched by the police. He has a bad reputation, and has always been considered a desperate character by the officers.

from the rear part of the building. All was confusion at once, excitable patients scream ing and rushing wildly about, seeking to es cape. Clouds of smoke immediately filled the ball. There was much difficulty in controlling the inmates. The men were ranged out a side room and the women out of the north side. The men rushed for the exit from their part of the building and were safely disposed of. The women were overcome with fright. In the confusion some of the weaker ones were pushed down, trampled on and left

He then rushed to the women's entrance and found the shrink ing crowd in a dark hall, and with much difficulty guided them to a place of safety. It was not known whether others were left in the room until the fire was partly subdued, when five dead bodies were found. They were not all badly burned, but had been suffocated before the flames had reached them.

The firemen, groping their way towards the flames with a stream of water, felt something soft and yielding under their feet. They stooped down and found two women clasped in each other's arms. They were burned almost to scrisp and were unrecognizable. Three bodies, found lying near the door leading out of the chapel, were removed and were recognized as Mrs. Margaret Pitts, of Medins County; Miss Jennie B. AEMAINS OF SIX VICTIMS.

Just a few feet beyond, where women yet alive lay tossing in pain, were four cots, ranged one after the other. Every one contained a dead body hid from view by sheets. In an outer room were two other charred bodies, quite unrecognizable. They were those of two women who, blinded by smoke, had failed to escape the fated chapel, and were devoured by the flames.

The fire was first seen in the drying room connected with the laundry, but the entire building seemed ablaze before an alarm could be given. The city fire department was at once summoned.

A The rear part of the building was occupied by servants, who all lost nearly all their personal effects, including some money. "A large number of women patients escaped to the surrounding country and city, and several were found wandering on the streets, and were placed under good care. Patients confined in the violent wards were much disturbed and beat against their iron bars. They did not comprehend what was the trouble, but they knew there was something wrong.
